PEN Monday Walks group enjoy a chat at the shelter on Pendle

April – June 2022
Year 5 Quarter 1

TOGETHER FOR OUR LANDMARK

The Environment

Restoring Traditional Boundaries

During this quarter we have held a very successful Beginners dry stone walling course and a taster day for the PEN project. This year our training site is owned by Philip Marginson of Northwood Farm in Higham, and is close to the Fence by-pass at Ashlar House (Stanley House Vets). There are plenty of gaps to repair along two walls, and the Level 1 course will also be held here over the summer.

In June we had 11 trainees over the 2 day course and 9 participants joined us on a special day for People Enjoying Nature participants (including 4 new people attracted by the course). Around 10m of wall was restored under the expert eye of Alan Rhodes of DSWA.

Restoring Wildlife and Priority Habitats

This project is now closed

Creating and Managing Woodlands

This project is now closed and a final claim and a completion report produced.

Pendle WINNs created 6 new woodland creation plans, and 12 new areas were planted, covering 19.5 hectares. 7 woodland management plans were also produced and 4 sites managed, covering 14.7 ha. At five sites invasive species were tackled, and in total 101 volunteering sessions were held. This means that all of the project targets were met, apart from 5 volunteer days: not bad considering the pandemic!!

The Economy

Enhancing Visitor Gateways and key routes to Access Heritage

We finally have an agreement with LCC Rights of Way that the work we now propose for Heys Lane improvement is acceptable and should go ahead. The key landowner has carried out remedial works that have been approved by the PROW team and all parties involved are content that the work is of benefit to the area. Contractors have been invited to do site walk overs and submit tenders by July 22nd for a decision to be made the following week. We expect that due to capacity issues the work will not take place until September or October.

After the contractor day held during the last quarter, tenders submitted for the work to restore the Summit Track on Pendle Hill have been reviewed and a nominated contractor chosen. Field and Fell will start work later in the summer. Field and Fell will also be carrying out the restoration repairs to Coal Pit Lane bridleway.

Over in Sabden, we've taken delivery of a shiny new Tramper and are just waiting for the delivery of a storage shed to be confirmed before we can get the base installed and an electrician lined up to get everything set for the Tramper's new home. This is expected in August. We are also still awaiting final confirmation from the legal teams on the signing of the concessionary agreement for the Tramper Trail itself, before we can officially launch the new route.

CPY contractors have completed the stone flag crossing to join to the newly installed stone flag path at Pendleside. This will address the erosion from the run-off of water from further up Pendle Hill. It also links up the network of paths we have restored on the hill to the next section of the Pendle Way which the landowner intends to improve utilising funds from the 'Farming in Protected Landscapes' scheme, managed by our colleagues at the AONB team.

Offering Apprenticeships

Calum continues to produce excellent work through his 2 year traineeship at In-Situ. This last 6 months he has supported the commissioning of the final two artists in residence for The Gatherings and also developed his own arts project with POUT in Burnley, a youth group supporting LGBTQ+ youngsters in Burnley where they will be working alongside artist Petra Szeman, who will be connecting digitally with the group from Japan and helping them to develop their own digital animations.

<https://www.petraszeman.com/>

Calum has also been supporting In-Situ with their recent major grant application, which is giving him excellent experience in arts administration and funding skills for the future.

Over at Pendle Heritage Centre our one remaining apprentice, Emma, is back from maternity leave and working hard on the heritage centre grounds and garden ready for the summer season. Emma has recently instigated garden tours which are attracting a good audience from the centre visitors. Out in the grounds work on the woodlands has completed, and trip cameras have recorded badger, bird and fox activity.

Chris is now well established at the PHLP team and has been taking on important roles with the PHLP volunteers and the 72 Seasons project, as well as leading on the interpretation work at the Nick o' Pendle visitor gateway.

Sense of Place and Sustainable Tourism

As part of a wider funded Eco Escapes project run by the Forest of Bowland AONB, businesses in the Pendle Hill area have been able to engage with the project to develop their green credentials and benefit from the development of the project resources. Eco Escapes is about targeting eco-conscious tourists keen to explore active travel or public transport options and discover beautiful natural landscapes, amazing wildlife and delicious local food by following a series of integrated itineraries linked to the gateway train stations of the AONB.

We have produced an itinerary for the Pendle Hill area and new photography, promoting 12 businesses within it and one business is undertaking green accreditation.

Businesses will also have the opportunity to attend training to develop an Eco Escapes action plan linked to a business toolkit to help them maximise the opportunities.

The content will be available from late July here: www.ecoescapes.org.uk

As part of our wider dark skies work, the AONB organised a talk to parish council across the AONB to increase awareness of our dark sky status and the importance of appropriate lighting and implications for local planning. The talk was offered to parishes in the Pendle Hill area and was attended by Sabden parish representatives. Additionally, Roughlee PC included a talk about dark skies by a local Astro-photographer as part of their annual local community meeting, following an introduction to Bowland's dark skies by the PHLP team.

Running a Community Grant Scheme

The Pendle Hill Fund is closed to any new applications, but we are still supporting projects funded in previous years who have had their activity delayed by COVID.

Pendle Heritage Centre have now completed their wildlife work in the grounds, with the completion report and final claim made.

Completed work in PHC grounds: new steps, wildlife cameras and volunteers work on a naturalistic planting bed

Burnley Youth Theatre's Pendle Pioneers project have made two interim claims to cover project management, resources for film costume & props, and marketing as detailed on the application. Their project will reach completion soon now.

Breaking Cycles made an interim claim in May for time spent exploring the legally ride-able trails and preparation of notes about grading factors and access information. Phil Wade also met with Charles Jepson to discuss collaboration to include the Clarion House Challenge routes in the Ride Pendle project. Creation of online mapping for routes continues.

Roughlee Parish Council's Heritage Trail detailing Roughlee's industrial past has now completed and the final claim has been made. Interpretation panels have been installed at the three locations in Roughlee where mills once stood: Thorneyholme, Dam Head and by the lodge near the Village Centre, giving the history of each site. Two of the panels have been mounted on stone plinths. At the Thorneyholme site, historic gates have been restored and two benches have been positioned. All aims have been successfully achieved, and the project completed at a significantly lower cost than originally anticipated thanks to local farmers, contractors and volunteers who gave their time free of charge.

The one remaining project, a summer activity camp led by Burnley Pendleside Rotary, will take place in August. This will provide short breaks at Whitehough camp for local children and their carers who might otherwise not get away from home or explore the local countryside in the summer holidays.

Providing Supported Activity Sessions for people dealing with mental health issues and social isolation

This summer we are re-running the 72 Seasons project through PEN. This is being managed by project creators, The Evaluator, and delivered by Farrah Imtiaz from the DEEN Centre (a community organisation which is creating a safe space for women of faith). Farrah has developed a 12 week course for a group of women and children, and also shorter courses for a girls after school club and a boys youth club.

We are addressing obstacles British-Asian people have historically felt when engaging in their local countryside. By combining faith-based activities and mindfulness such as making of prayer beads and prayer mats using natural material, with environmental activities such as walks around the Ogden reservoirs and up Pendle Hill, shelter building and nature-based treasure hunts.

The sessions have been really well attended and received. Farrah has mixed indoor and outdoor sessions, introducing people to nature via creative workshops and their Islamic faith, and drawing parallels between our cultures. We even found out this week, during a climb of Pendle, that the word 'dhul' which we had identified as a Saxon term for 'hill' is also used in Islam as the name of the 12th month 'Dhul Hijjah' as it relates to the trek across mountains as part of the Hajj, or pilgrimage.

Most of the women attending have come along as a result of family bereavement due to Covid, and many are finding the sessions really helpful to their wellbeing.

Poster for the project

Chris has also been supporting the boys group who participated in a 72 Seasons nature trial in Victoria Park and some den building in Wycoller woods.

Our regular PEN sessions have also re-started since Jayne's departure at the end of March. We commissioned two local people, Maj Mahmood and Pete Compston, who were already volunteering in similar groups, to lead the Monday Walks and Thursday activity sessions. Working in partnership with the Lancashire & South Cumbria NHS foundation trust we have continued to take people via their referral services and signposting and in May and June we had 115 participants attending 16 different sessions. These included Dandelion Day at Downham, walks around Barrowford, plantcraft sessions at the Clarion

House and two climbs up Pendle! The two session leaders have been great and we hope to carry on with delivery through into October.

Creatively Engaging People in our Radical History

In May we released the short film of our special event for International Women's Day 2022. The 'Ethel Tour' by vintage coach had brought together many of our volunteer contributors who have explored the life and literary work of Ethel Carnie Holdsworth over the past four years. 'Ethel by Charabanc' is a nine minute short video by Huckleberry Films, and captures all the exuberant collective spirit of a really special day.

<https://vimeo.com/714463829>

Our PhD researcher Jenny Harper was one of five members of our group who collaborated on writing an introduction to the next of Ethel's novels to be reissued. 'The House That Jill Built' was published on 14 June by Kennedy & Boyd. The introduction is credited to Pendle Radicals and we are delighted.

We have continued to collaborate with the textile artist James Fox after his superlative exhibition for British Textile Biennial. Now, inspired by the Kinder Scout anniversary, James has created a new banner work about the struggles for access to the countryside. His beautiful new banner builds in reference to our own countryside pioneers Stephenson and Leonard. After some time at the Working Class Movement Library, it is now taking the Pendle Radicals message to Blackwell Arts & Crafts House in the Lake District. Our long awaited publication 'Banner Culture' will also be printed in July.

James Fox's Right to Roam banner

To complement the banner we commissioned 'Trespass' in collaboration with James and the Robertsons, our specialist audio contributors. This is a one off audio collage of readings about the countryside, fusing both bucolic poetics and political polemic. Celebrated voices are heard alongside those of our own Radicals volunteers, all bookended by a song from Commoners Choir. We can't wait to share this terrific soundscape with an online audience in July. The Robertsons were also out recording stories at this year's Clarion Sunday, and volunteers supported the Annual Whit Walk – see photos below.

Our team continue to prepare the ground for the second phase of Radicals Trail sites. After a longer gestation than planned, we are now making good progress on productive partnerships for new panels in Colne (TA Leonard), Sabden (Richard Cobden), Whalley (Tom Stephenson) and Clitheroe (David Shackleton MP).

Radicals contributors have continued to spread the word with a sequence of talks and guided walks. Our walks specialists continue to complement the Trail with 'Walking with Radicals', our developing suite of themed walks.

Delivering Community Archaeology sessions and related training

This quarter, NAA (now called Ecus consulting) have run two training days for us, attracting 26 volunteers, to learn more about using LiDAR and how to illustrate archaeological finds. In addition, Jess has organised volunteer visits to Sabden and to the Lancashire Historic Environment Record and Archives. We are also now busy planning for phase 2 of the Roman Road excavation: a fortnight of volunteer dig days running at the end of July.

In June we were joined by Sarah Hunt, our final intern from UCLan's archaeology department. Sarah will be supporting the excavation, but she is also devising and designing a self-guided walk around archaeological sites and landscapes as viewed from the Nick of Pendle. This has involved considerable desk research, meetings with local historians and a number of walks across the moor! Sarah will lead her guided walk at the end of August, support Clitheroe Castle's summer Archaeology Day (July 23rd) and UCLan's student-led excavation at Portfield hill fort in August, hopefully running some open days for the volunteers.

Threads

Supporting Volunteering and Learning opportunities across the scheme

We have been working with PHLP Volunteers in woodland owned by United Utilities near to Barley, clearing vegetation on the sculpture trail. Other sessions have involved clearing the water bars and introducing volunteers to other volunteer groups such as the Friends of Spring Wood and Friends of Wycoller.

Our regular volunteer task, clearing the water bars of accumulated stone on the steep path up Pendle

Following on from the pond management session in March with Dr David Orchard, from Lancashire Amphibian and Reptile group, the volunteers also attended a survey session in late May with David.

With steadily reducing volunteer numbers (possibly because this is the first year covid has allowed freedom of travel) we have had low numbers of volunteers attending sessions, and so we've now made the difficult decision to bring the volunteer group to a close. We have asked for permission to retain contact details in order to keep volunteers informed of other opportunities with ourselves towards the end of the project, or when other opportunities arise within the Forest of Bowland AONB. We did however hold a Volunteer Thank You day in June to celebrate all the hard work the group have been involved in.

Celebrating Volunteer Week with a walk and picnic for PHLP Volunteers

A teaching assistant at a local school has become a new learning volunteer and has been inducted and started volunteering at Little Saplings. She is gaining valuable first-hand experience while she undertakes her Level 3 Forest School training. Another Outdoor Learning volunteer has recently gained a paid position at a local Forest school nursery and will be continuing volunteering with PHLP over the summer holidays.

During Easter School Holidays the Ribble Rivers Trust joined the OLO for a Family Nature Event minibeast hunt at Spring Wood near Whalley and Victoria Park in Nelson. Families enjoyed hunting for invertebrates in water habitats, the meadow and the woodland, they even made a pollination pot to take home.

Little Saplings toddler group finishes in mid-July. An online survey has been sent out to recent attendees and has currently had 33 responses. Face to face questions have also been asked at the events to gain better case studies and understanding. The evaluation report will be compiled by the end of July. There is also an Outdoor Toddler Group signposting document available for adults on the Little Sapling website, to provide parents and carers with information about other Forest School type provision and outdoor nursery groups nearby.

Nelson and Colne College students finished taking part in seven days' of work experience within Pendle Borough's Marsden Park. The seven students, aged between 18-22 years, enjoyed carrying out conservation tasks within PBC Marsden park during each 2-hour session. Skills developed over the course of the programme were aimed to aid future employment whilst being environmentally orientated and included teamwork, ability to follow instructions and using initiative. Conservation tasks included translocating saplings, creating and scattering seed balls. The group also made pinecone and bottle bird feeders, and three small minibeast hotels to be installed in the park. A report has been produced which summarises the process, and provides further learning points and recommendations for offering work experience placements in the future.

The OLO and graduate trainee co-delivered a training session as part of Lancashire School Sport Partnership's This Girl Can day at RVBC Edisford sports centre. 72 year 9 girls from eight high schools across Pendle, Ribble Valley, Hyndburn and Burnley learnt how to use a compass and took part in an orienteering course and map reading session. They also carried out tree identification and discussed the importance of getting outdoors in nature.

The OLO (outdoor learning officer) has planned and led nine trips, including West Street primary's year 3s and year 4s carrying out a local geography day, by learning how to use compasses, discovering how Colne town has changed over 200 years and carrying out a geography features walk around the local area. The teachers plan to "Apply the compass work, map work and field work skills to another visit to Lytham and application across the rest of our geography topic this half term".

Padiham Green primary took part in two days, one on school grounds and the other at nearby Gawthorpe Hall. The pupils were carrying out plant and minibeast hunting surveys at each site as a comparison, this also allowed the teachers and head teacher to see different methods of delivering the science national curriculum. The school hope to build on this new relationship with Gawthorpe Hall next academic year. The year 5 class teacher said " When I complete the unit next year, I will definitely complete the mini-beast hunt with the children and use this to lead into looking at classification"

Lomeshaye year 3s finally took part in their plants and soils day, which had been arranged and cancelled many times since 2020. Barrow Primary, Padiham Primary and Christ Church primary also completed all their 2020 planned sessions, which had local geography and history themes.

Simonstone Primary reception class visited Spring Wood for a natural art and sensory exploration trip.

Wheatley Lane primary school have a new year 4 teacher who wanted to shadow the OLO carrying out the river studies session which was delivered in 2021 at Barley. The trip was repeated, and the year 4 teacher now feels confident enough to repeat this next year independently.

Ightenhill Primary school used their last day with the OLO to deliver a plants and soil session with year 4 classes. As the school grounds contains very little green space, the OLO arranged for the trip to take part at Ightenhill Park which is managed by Burnley borough council and 'friends' group. The Park have a private contained area which the school hope to partner up with to use as an extension of their school grounds. Meetings are taking place with the school headteacher, friends of group and the OLO to make this relationship occur and be sustainable.

A survey has been sent out to the 21 schools who have taken part in the Embedding Outdoor Learning project. 16 teachers and six headteachers have so far completed the school evaluation survey. A report is being compiled by the ECT Research and Impact Manager. To thank they schools who completed this survey, they have been offered half a day of the OLO time to book in within July and September.

Plans are being put into place for a Gathering event for the Pendle Hill schools. This is a FREE Outdoor Learning Training Day for Pendle Hill Schools on Thursday 15th September. More details here: <https://www.pendlehillproject.com/outdoor-learning-training-day>

Holding the Gatherings and annual events to engage new audiences

This quarter, our focus has been to support our final two artist residency commissions, led by Hafsah Bashir and Nisha Duggal. Alongside this, we have begun planning the Final Gathering, due to take place late on 13th October 2022.

Our mobile hut, Corky, made an appearance at the annual Festival of Culture in Nelson town centre on Saturday 25th June. It was a brilliant day and we used the Hut to showcase the many reflection and artist films that have been made throughout the PHLP programme. We also showcased some of the VR work made by Lydia Griffiths during their Testing Ground residency and handed out copies of our accessible creative booklets 'Reconnect'.

Over 300 people passed through Corky on the day and feedback was overwhelmingly positive.

Corky, In-Situ staff, volunteers and resident artist Hafsa, at Nelson Festival of Culture

Keen to continue supporting The Summit group, we submitted a large BBC Children in Need bid this quarter. Unfortunately, it was unsuccessful, but we continue to look for funding options to resource and upscale the weekly sessions for young people. The group also joined us as volunteers at the Festival of Culture.

Hafsa Bashir has made good progress with the Story-mapping Residency, as initial ideas have developed further through meetings with staff at the DEEN Centre, who invited Hafsa to attend their Monday session, the group size of which averages at 40 women. The legacies and heritage of migrant women - the mothers and grandmothers of women who attend the DEEN Centre - are the inspiration for Hafsa's residency moving forward. There is no existing map of the stories of these women, many who navigated Pendle without speaking English but built communities and homes despite this. The way women supported one another, their families and communities will be remembered through this project. The next steps will be for Hafsa to lead creative writing workshops with the DEEN Centre group and the outcomes of the residency will become clearer once the interests and abilities of the group are better understood.

Alongside this, Hafsa is keen to capture the stories of male taxi drivers speaking about their mothers and grandmothers. These stories will run alongside the outcomes of the work with the women to form an interesting map of migrant women's legacies in Pendle.

We are delighted to have also now commissioned Nisha Duggal to undertake the final Residency. Nisha was selected following interviews with three practitioners, all of whom were impressive and engaging. We felt Nisha had the experience and ambition to deliver hands on, public facing work that would appeal to our audiences.

Nisha, based in London, explores expressions of freedom in the everyday. She is interested in the transformative qualities of making and doing, engineering situations that uncover deep-seated primitive impulses to connect. With extensive experience working with communities, including young people, to co-create projects we are excited to see what Nisha will develop in Pendle.

Nisha's initial interests include making the most of Corky! A pop-up film workshop using the hut and green screens is in development, and we are currently collating dates for upcoming Summer events that Nisha could be a part of. So far Nisha has explored Nelson and Brierfield, as well as venturing up Pendle Hill.

Nisha (far right) gets to know Pendle Hill with Sophie from In-Situ, Nichola & Cathy from PHLP

After careful consideration of multiple venues across Pendle and Ribble Valley, we have confirmed that the Final Gathering will take place at Stirk House on Thursday 13th October. Having received invite lists from all project leads, we aim to send out a save the date during the first week of July.

At an engaging Project Leads meeting on 17th May, together we agreed on a general lay out for the day's programme, as well as overall themes for activity. The morning will feature welcomes from key contributors, followed by an interactive activity led by In-Situ focusing on Ecologies of Care: Nature, Arts & Wellbeing. Mid Pennine Arts will lead the second activity, focusing on Old Marks, New Lands: Preservation, Restoration and Radical Thinking.

Following lunch, the afternoon will feature optional site visits to key PHLP sites. Alternatively, there will be a film screening and a woodland walk available on site at Stirk House.

Finally, there will be reception drinks, an evening meal with films and thank-yous and finally stargazing and dancing.

Co-ordinating Interpretation and Publicity

During April and May a short film about volunteering was created by Huckleberry films to capture what it means to be a volunteer in the Pendle Hill landscape. The film celebrates all our volunteers and their work over the years. The film was also a call to action for anybody interested in volunteering within the Pendle Hill Landscape for this final phase of the project, and was released as part of Volunteers Week in June.

View the film at: <https://youtu.be/5jPIVzL8wgM>

We also completed work on the Traditional Boundaries filming with Mark Currie, drawing over a year's worth of filming, and several short videos, into one film describing the importance of field boundaries in the Pendle Hill landscape: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GJxAez9N7kl&t=88s>

For the last few months we have been pulling together a plan for the production of the final interpretation panels – in total we are producing 12 new panels at our gateway sites of Spring Wood, Barley, Clarion House and Nick O'Pendle. An illustrator has been commissioned to produce wildlife illustrations for the panels and members of the team are currently writing the content in collaboration with site-specific partners.

Spring Wood is a key gateway site to the Pendle Hill area with high footfall, so in addition to the new panels we are developing further interpretation. We have developed a new arboretum leaf rubbing area for youngsters and families and have developed new signposting around the woods and general upgrade and maintenance to existing furniture.

Staffing and Programme Management

As we have now started work on our 7 month extension, and we are 2 staff members down in the LP team, there is still an awful lot to do! Everyone is working hard and we are starting to see a number of 'blockages' cleared which gives us confidence in completing delivery on time and to budget. As part of our year-end financial check with Lancashire County Council we identified that there were sufficient 'reserves' available in our budget to remove the need to secure any further match funds, and this has enabled us to plan the last few projects without needing to fundraise as well.

We are busy planning for our end-of-scheme Final Gathering and also for our evaluation and legacy work which will take place over the summer and into the autumn. We are also completing work on putting together applications for funds to continue our outdoor learning and wellbeing work until 2025 and across the wider AONB communities and landscapes.
